

Take the right path

Northumbria University Degree with CIMA

Once you have obtained your CIMA Professional qualification, you can now progress your career with this direct degree pathway to the BA (Hons) Business and Management Degree from Northumbria University, United Kingdom.

Deputy British High Commissioner, Mr. Mark Gooding will formally launch the commencement of the programme in the presence of Neil Slater, Head of International Student Recruitment, Northumbria University and Bradley Emerson, Regional Director, South Asia & Middle East CIMA, and W. A. Wijewardena, President BMS, on Monday 26th July 2010 at the British High Commission, Colombo.

Message from Mark Gooding, Deputy British High Commissioner

The British High Commission is pleased to support the launch of Northumbria University's BA (Hons) Business and Management Degree programme in Sri Lanka. Northumbria University's collaboration with the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA) is an innovative approach to increase access for Sri Lankan students to a British university degree. I commend the efforts of Northumbria, CIMA and their local partner BMS in setting up this degree programme. It provides the opportunity for Sri Lankan students to gain an internationally recognised British qualification and will enhance career development opportunities for the students.

This programme will further strengthen the education partnership between our two countries. I wish this endeavour every success.

Message from Bob Woodward, Associate Dean, Newcastle Business School, Northumbria University

Newcastle Business School of Northumbria University is delighted to offer an innovative new work related honours degree programme in Sri Lanka, the BA (Hons) Business and Management. The programme has been specifically designed for CIMA qualified students. By fully recognising the CIMA curriculum and CIMA standards the programme is able to offer CIMA qualified students specific exemptions. This provides entry to the programme at an advanced stage which enables students to complete an honours degree with one year of part-time study.

I look forward to meeting students and graduates of the BA (Hons) Business and Management programme in Sri Lanka.

Message from Bradley Emerson, Regional Director South Asia & Middle East, CIMA

Adding value to our members and students on a continuous basis is our endeavour. The degree programme for CIMA qualified students from Northumbria University is yet another initiative towards this objective. The degree will further enhance the lead position CIMA enjoys among employers in Sri Lanka and across the world. The completion award degrees from British universities is an endorsement of the quality of the CIMA curriculum, and in our view is an advocacy for the next generation professional qualification.

Message from W. A. Wijewardena, President, BMS

BMS, a UK education specialist and Northumbria University Regional Centre for Sri Lanka and Maldives is pleased to announce yet another milestone in the future of education in Sri Lanka. BMS is pleased to associate itself with the inauguration of the special Bachelors Degree programme in Business and Management which Northumbria University has designed for CIMA qualified students. This degree programme will provide an opportunity for Sri Lankan students to achieve professional and academic qualifications which will be essential in the intense competitive employment market.
